Assessment against Local Criteria

1. Rarity: bleaching was once the primary industry in Basford, yet few buildings from the industry survive.
2. Historic value: This building survives with the name plaque evidencing its purpose and ownership, but also the Day Brook can be seen to the east of the building (left in the picture above) showing the physical relationship to the water supply.
3. Group value: Value as a set with Rosebery House showing the domestic residence and working place of the owning family of a bleach works

Reason for Designation

A rare survival of a bleach works building, once the primary industry in Basford. To the left of the building, the Day Brook, the water supply for the factory, can be seen, showing the historic relationship between the bleach works and water.
